The latest local and national unemployment figures have been released ahead of next week's budget speech.

The number of Jobseekers' Allowance claimants in East Hampshire for last month was down year on year, standing at 842 people, as against 1,070 in April 2010. Overall unemployment in East Hampshire stood at less than half the national rate. Indeed it was in the lowest tenth of UK areas for unemployment.

Damian Hinds said

"Unemployment in East Hampshire remains low but we must not be complacent. There are still many difficult decisions to confront and we are still bringing public spending under control."

The JSA claimant count is an administrative count of those claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). It has the benefit of being timely, accurate, available since 2004 and for local areas. The main problem with the claimant count is that some of those looking for work and 'unemployed' do not, or cannot, claim JSA. The JSA claimant count is therefore an indicator of unemployment rather than a perfect measure of unemployment.

The 'Library' rate is calculated by the House of Commons Library and shows the number of JSA claimants as a proportion of the estimated economically active population aged 16 to 64 resident in each constituency in 2008. This calculation attempts to capture the effect of differences in economic activity in constituencies and is not an 'official' unemployment rate, but it is useful for comparison purposes.
